Foreseeable revenues trend also in view of the Covid emergency

With reference to the Covid emergency and its potential impact in the coming months, the Company is well aware that the uncertainty about the timing of the end of the pandemic emergency and the seriousness of the consequences it will have on the world's major economies is still high. A possible renewal or extension of the restrictive measures against Italian tanneries could have negative effects on the supply of its raw material inputs and, consequently, on its production capacity and commercial activity. Similarly, any renewal or extension of the lockdown in countries where the Company markets its products could weaken demand for the Company's products, particularly in the construction sector, to which retardants are addressed to (agriculture, on the other hand, seems to be much less affected by emergency dynamics).

Said so, however, the Company remains confident - also thanks to the initiatives undertaken, such as, among others, the increase in sales prices to meet the extraordinary costs link to the management of the pandemic and an August of increased operations and production - that it will continue to grow and that it will be able, if not to achieve the budget targets, at least to minimize any deviations.

Massimo Neresini, CEO of SICIT Group, commented: "In light of the health emergency, which seems to be hitting the world economy again, we are satisfied. We enter the last quarter of the year with a double-digit growth performance in the first nine months (+11.5%), further improved, thanks to the sustained demand for biostimulants and the complete recovery of animal fat production for biofuels and revenues from tanning waste withdrawing services; and despite the foreseeable decline in retardants for construction. In these times, it is a particularly valuable result, despite the fact that our sales team has not been able to travel; and always guaranteeing, on the one hand, the productive and commercial continuity necessary to serve our customers in the best way and, on the other hand, the highest safety standards to our collaborators. Moreover, our industrial investment plan has recovered the delay in the building works, due to the spring lockdown; as well as the development of new products has continued, creating tailor-made products, able to meet the different needs of agricultural (biostimulants) and industrial (retardants) companies. Although the Covid pandemic, these results support us about the possibility, even in a very difficult economic context, to pursue the targets set for the current year".

Thanks to a qualified team, highly automated and technological production plants, state-of-the-art laboratories and constant investments in R&D, SICIT has become a reference operator at international level, supplying the main players in the agrochemical and industrial sectors.

Since June 2020, the company has been listed on the MTA (Italian Equities Market), Star Segment, of Borsa Italiana.
